Principal grants to Agent the authority to draft a trust for the benefit of Principal, which trust would continue in existence as a supplemental (and emergency) fund to public assistance for Principal throughout her life. Currently, there exists basic living needs which public benefits for patients do not provide. It is Principal's intent that the trust, so called a special needs trust, provide these unfunded basic living needs in order that Principal may maintain a level of human dignity and humane care. If a special needs trust is drafted for Principal, Agent shall take all precautions to prevent the trust from being invaded by creditors, subjected to liens or encumbrances, or drafted in a way that would cause public benefits to be terminated. If any of these events occur, it is likely that the trust corpus would be depleted prior to Principal's death especially since the cost of care for long term patients (not including any emergency needs) is high. Should any of these events occur there would be no coverage for emergencies or supplementation of basic needs. The special needs trust created by the Agent should be interpreted in light of these concerns and Principal's stated intent.
